

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Media Contact:

Patti Carlyle

pcarlyle@communitysolutions.com

John Corlett, President and Executive Director at The Center for Community Solutions, retiring

CLEVELAND, OH—February 10, 2023 John Corlett is retiring after 41 years in Ohio’s non-profit and government affairs service. Corlett’s career has included leadership roles in Cleveland and Columbus, in the public and private sectors, including as the State of Ohio’s Medicaid Director and as vice president for government relations and community affairs at The MetroHealth System.

In two terms at Community Solutions, first as Medicaid Fellow, and most recently as Executive Director, Corlett has served nearly 18 years at the organization.

“Those of us who know John personally and professionally admire him for his kind demeanor, trustworthiness, and strategic mindset, but his lifetime of service truly reveals his character as a servant leader,” said Board Chair Kyle Miller. “I wish John well in his retirement and know that he has left massive shoes to fill not only at The Center for Community Solutions, but for the entire health and human services landscape in Ohio. While John heads toward his well-deserved retirement, I’m comforted in knowing that he has trained and educated countless professionals during his storied career.”

The Center for Community Solutions Board of Trustees will be engaging an executive search firm. Corlett will retire before the end of the year.

###

The Center for Community Solutions is a leader in Ohio’s Health and Human Services space, focused on policy advocacy, research, and data analysis. Organizations in Northeast Ohio and statewide use this analysis to understand public policies that affect their work and develop advocacy agendas accordingly. Direct service organizations, funders, and policymakers rely on accurate data and analysis to inform their decision-making, which can impact all Ohioans.